RE: AD-47 Survey: Wallis Holds Narrow Lead

Fabrizio, Lee & Associates surveyed 400 likely November 2026 general election voters in California's 47th Assembly District. Interviews were conducted October 10–12, 2026, by cell phone (40%), landline (15%), and SMS-to-web (45%). The margin of error is $\pm 4.9\%$.

Assemblymember Greg Wallis leads Democrat Leila Namvar 45% to 42%.

Voters like what they are hearing about Wallis. His name ID is positive at 31% favorable to 25% unfavorable. A large majority of voters (64%) have recently seen, read, or heard something about him, and they came away more likely to vote for him by 8 points (26% more likely, 18% less likely). His job approval is 41% approve to 26% disapprove.

Namvar is still building definition. Her name ID is 17% favorable to 16% unfavorable. A slight majority of voters (51%) have recently seen, read, or heard something about her, and they are evenly split on whether it makes them more likely to vote for her (17% more likely, 17% less likely).

Wallis has a strong coalition because voters see him as a bipartisan problem solver. He has consolidated Republicans (89%), leads among Independents by 12 points (41%-29%), and is already hitting vote goals with Democrats at 8%.

With 14% of voters still undecided, the final weeks will determine whether Wallis can get above 50%. The collective efforts to re-elect him have put him in a good position, but they must stay the course to finish with a victory.
